The Restorative Holy Grail

Finding And Accurately Recording CR Every Time
With The Kois Occlusal De-programmer

The accurate recording of Centric relation (CR) is considered by many to be the natural starting point when embarking upon extensive reconstructive dental care. However, despite the fact there have been numerous deprogramming devices and techniques described in the literature, for many clinicians the recording of CR for their patients still remains a daunting prospect, and often proves difficult to achieve in practice. The de-programming device described by Dr John Kois seeks to remove the confusion and simplify the entire process, thus making the achieving and recording of CR a more predictable prospect altogether. This simple device can be easily made by your own technician, and by using it you will be able to predictably mount Study Models in CR every time.

Dr Ken Harris

Ken Harris graduated with BDS from the dental school of the University of Newcastle upon Tyne in 1982 and MFGDP (UK) in 1996. He maintains a fully private, multi award-winning referral practice with branches in Sunderland and Newcastle upon Tyne specialising in complex dental reconstruction cases based upon sound treatment planning protocols.

Ken is an Accredited BACD member and is currently an examiner for the BACD Accreditation Process. He is a sustaining AACD member and also holds full membership of BAAD. Dr Harris has participated in countless advanced dental education programmes both at home and abroad. He has spent time with Dr Newton Fahl in Brazil, and was for many years, a senior UK clinical instructor for the Rosenthal Institute's Aesthetic Advantage in London and New York. Currently he is UK Clinical Director for the California Center for Advanced Dental Studies.

Ken completed the arduous 9 stage continuum studying with Dr John Kois in Seattle in 2008, and recently passed the examination to become the only UK Mentor at the prestigious Kois Center. He is a recognised dental teacher and lecturer, and has written numerous articles in the dental press.
